WASHINGTON, May 20 .- President Wilson's cabled message outlining legislation for the extra session of the ew Congress was read separately in the Senate and House today by clerks and arrangements were made by consideration of the vast legislative program with the equal suffrage resoluon to come up tomorrow in the House. Major recommendations of the President were for early return to private Gent were for early return to private ownership of railroads, telegraphs and telephones, for repeal of war-time prohibition insofar as applying to beer and wines, for woman suffrage, retailatory tariffs, protection of the dyestuff industry and labor and employment measures. The President announced his intention to turn back the railroads at the end of the calendar year.

rationals at the end of the calendar year.

Republican leaders met the President's proposals for early return of public utilities by statements that such legislation aiready was planned. As to the prohibition recommendation, both Republican and Democratic "dry" leaders joined in vigorous statements dissenting from the President's suggestions, and predicting that no beer and wine repeal would be passed.

Opinion in both Senate and House, as ascertained by leaders, was general that the ban on beer and wine would not be lifted.

Legislation is necessary to remove the prohibition provisions, the President said he had been informed by by the best in the prohibitation of the property of the propert had been informed by his legal advisers.

Senator Sheppard, of Texas, Democrat, and Representative Randall, of California, prohibitionists, champions of the war-time "dry" law, and other prohibition advocates issued statements prohibition advocates issued statements announcing determined opposition to repeal legislation. They declared a large majority of Congress favors prohibition, and predicted the repeal measure would not be enacted. Some Republican leaders charged the President with shifting responsibility to the Republican Congress, and said that all he would gain would be criticism of prohibitionists.

Representative Fordney, of Michigan, chairman of the committee, declined to comment on the President's assertion that a general revision of the tariff was unnecessary. Other Republican members said that hearings of business men should decide whether there should be tariff revision, while some said a general revision was impossible because of the unsacted condition of world affairs.

REDFIELD SEES FAILURE Secretary of Commerce Says Gov ment Operation of Utilities Is Not Good Thing.

NEW YORK. May 20.—The experience of the nation in Federal operation of the railroads, the merchant marine and the telegraph and telephone lines has conviced Secretary of Commerce Redfield that such government operation of the great systems of intercommunication in a country as large as the United States, is not a good thing. Speaking at a dinner of the Purchasing Agents' Association here tonight, he announced this as his own "settled judgment."

Presbyterians Assail Wilson's Liquor Stand

ST. LOUIS, May 20.—President Wilson was arraigned today by commissioners to the One Hundred of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., for requesting Congress to repeal or amend the war-time prohibition act and a resolution was adopted urging Congress to sustain the law. President Wilson is an elder in the church

A copy of the resolution will be enblied to the President. It follows:

"This assembly learns with pain

"This assembly learns with pain that the President of the United States has recommended to Congress that it repeal a part of wartime prohibition, and in view of this fact we most carnestly petition Congress that it not only retain the measure, but that the measure he enforced to the fullest extent to the end that the needs of the world for food may be met, and that the efficiency and morale of our own people be preserved."

B. E. P. Prugh, of Harrishurg, Pa. State chairman of the probibition organization of Pennsylvania, asserted, "This is the second time President Wilson has stepped in to hefriend the liquor interests and means the undoing of all that has been done."

they are of demonstrated commercial value.

All apparently are agreed that bigger ships are necessary for transatlantic flying.

Officials emphasized that the work of Commander Towers' squadron had been highly satisfactory and they are convinced that fog alone prevented all three of the flying craft from reaching the Azores through the air. The value of the design also was demonstrated, they said, by the ability shown by the NC-3 Up fine through a storm.

It was said that the planes undoubtedly would have done much better had they been equipped with geared Limberty motors, that is motors of 500 horse power, but with no greater weight than the 400-horse power engines. Engineers still are working on such a motor. Another problem which experts are seeking to solve is that of gentling the propellers down when the engine is at full speed so as to get greater efficiency. This problem is similar to that which engineers faced.

Greeted by Richmond Party.

The transport steamed on in Chesapeake Bay and thence into Hampton Roads. There the men were officially greeted by Governor Westmoreland Davis, Mayor Ainslie, of Richmond, Mayors of other Virginia cities and welcoming delegations from all over the State. These delegations went out early this morning on submarine chasers and tugs.

Flying machines and balloons from the Hampton Roads naval base circled over the homing ship. The tugs and launches went as near as they dared Oranges and cigarettes hurtled through the air. Mothers exchanged greetings with their sons, and fierce robel yells rent the air.

As the Matsonia turned to enter the near channel an airplane swooped low over the water. For a moment it looked as though it were going to crash into the ship. On and on the machine came. People held their breath, their mouths agape in wonder. The machine rose slightly, glided through the air above the ship. Something hurtled down through the air, falling among the closely packed thousands of knaki-clad men who were grouped on the deck.

It was a message from Mayor A. A. Moss, of Newport News, and a bundle of newspapers. The men yelled their delight. The machine circled, turned and came back, playing about the boat and its precious cargo of humanity as it came up the channel and turned in towards the pier.

The small boats dropped behind and cut across to another pier, where the delegations landed and were taken to the reviewing stand.
